Singing up a storm at Forts des Prairies Jamboree

Guest artists from Athabasca and Redwater were a special treat for the small crowd at Fort George and Buckingham House Historic Site on Sunday, with Clarence Smith of Ashmont picking along with Ron and Virginia Donald and, Joanne and Merv Leitz, the latter playing a unique pickle pail bass.

Guest performers highlight at FGBH

Review Staff

A dozen performers provided two solid hours of entertainment in a scenic outdoor setting on Sunday, as Fort George and Buckingham House Provincial Historic Site hosted the annual Forts des Prairies Jamboree.

This year's crowd was small but appreciative, and the weather cooperated nicely, with just enough cloud and light breeze for comfort.

Elk Point performer Clarence Poiras opened the show with a medley of country favourites, including 'Wild Side of Life,' 'Take These Chains From

My Heart' and 'Honky Tonk Angel,' backed up by Clarence Smith and Russ Kowtun, following up with 'No Way José.'

Myron Cotton of Cold Lake, one of the contestants at Elk Point's Canada Day Idol competition, upped the tempo considerably with 'Spin You Around and another hard rock number, the first of that genre to ever be part of the annual event.

It was back to old time country as Smith took the spotlight with 'The Wreck of Old Number Nine,' 'Patches on Old Garments' and a gospel favourite, 'Back to the Bible.'

Two couples visiting the area on vacation were a pleasant addition to the program, Joanne and Merv Leitz of Redwater and Virginia and Ron Donald of Athabasca are no strangers to jamborees in their areas and performed a variety of numbers. Joanne Leitz said her husband and Ron Donald have ties to Alberta's historic forts, and are related to one of the factors at that site in the late 1800s. Joanne, Virginia and Ron took turns singing numbers ranging from 'Oh, Lonesome Me' and 'Satin Sheets' to 'My Heart Skips a Beat,' while Merv added accompaniment on his unique, pickle pail bass, an adaptation of the washtub bass featured in a few old-time country bands.

Wind turbine an ongoing concern

By CLARE GAUVREAU
Review Staff

Town of Elk Point council discussed the ongoing concern of a resident over alleged noise created by the wind turbine at the Elk Point Visitor Information Eco Centre during the Aug. 12 council meeting.

"The AUC (Alberta Utilities Commission) is saying it's our responsibility to resolve the problem," Mayor Parrish Tung told council, pointing out that the building is owned and operated by the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce. "It's their property, their project," Tung said. Information pertaining to the turbine has previously been sent to AUC but Tung said there is another request from the commission for the information.

Coun. Ron Fraess said "the complainant is outside the recommended distance," as far as proximity to the equipment is concerned and Coun. Dwayne Yaremkevich indicated testing has indicated the noise generated by the turbine falls below the accepted level.

"AUC wants us to meet with this lady to try and resolve this issue," said the mayor, while observing that an earlier meeting with the resident to reach some kind of resolution to her concerns had proven to be "futile."

Council agreed to meet with the resident again and to re-send information regarding the turbine and noise testing to the AUC.

Pedestrian crossing

In response to a complaint to the Town of Elk Point regarding the pedestrian crossing at 50 Ave and 50 St., council agreed action needed to be taken to address concerns of safety.

"I am concerned about the motorists who do not yield to pedestrians crossing the street. I personally have nearly been struck by a vehicle and, today, I witnessed a senior in a wheelchair missed being struck by a truck by a hair," a resident noted in a written complaint to the Town.

Council agreed the crossing needs to be repainted, pedestrian signage erected and the RCMP should be asked to pay some attention to it.

Walking to school brings plenty of benefits

By CAROLYN EVANCIO
Alberta Health Services

Another school year means (potentially) another year of frustrations as you deal with traffic congestion and parking issues as you drive your child to school. This year, have your child "miss the bus" and take an adventure as you walk to school.

If you live within walking distance to your school, there are many benefits to letting your age-appropriate child walk to school. Better yet - if you can, join them for the journey to school. Here are the benefits and tips on walking to school:

It takes the same amount of time. You always arrive at the same time; there are no traffic delays when you walk.

It's healthy. Walking to school keeps you fit and healthy, and wakes you up for a day of learning. Walking to, and from school can help your child get some needed exercise. As outlined in the Canadian Physical Guidelines, children ages 5 - 11 should accumulate at least 60 minutes of moderate to vigorous activity each day.

It improves school performance. There is a link between academic performance and physical activity. Children who are physically active are more likely to do better at school. Children who walk to school arrive alert and ready to learn.

It's free. Walking costs nothing and you can explore your local area. Walking to school can also mean significant reduction in cost for fuel and car maintenance. Leaving the car at home will help save the environment by cutting down on car emissions and reduce levels of air pollution.

Walk 'n' talk. Walk with your friends and family, and get talking on the way to and from school. It is a great time to take the opportunity to talk to your child. If your child is old enough to walk to school with friends, walking will give them extra time to build friendships or if they are walking alone, it can be a great time to think, relax and reflect on the day.

Safety. If you are worried about safety, rally together with neighbours and organize a walk-to-school program that has a responsible older child or adult leading the group.

If you require health advice, please contact HealthLink Alberta at 1-866-408-LINK (5465).

School zones in effect

By JANICE HUSER
Review Contributor

In just a week's time, students will be packing their lunches and backpacks and heading off to the first day of the 2013-14 school year and motorists are being reminded that school zones will be in effect.

"School will soon be back in, and once again our youth will be on the roadways as pedestrians, cyclists, and passengers on the school buses," says Barry Sallstrom, Regional Traffic Safety Consultant for Alberta Transportation

Lindbergh vocalist Debbie Lawrence sang two enjoyable numbers, 'Imogene's Guitar' and 'Where Jesus Is.' She also led the singing of 'Happy Birthday' for one of the lifetime members of the Friends of the Forts who rarely misses the annual jamboree, Russel 'Rusty' Williams of Lloydminster, who will turn 89 today.

A familiar voice from some years ago was also on the program, Franklin Wolters adding harmonica highlights to Gene Autry favourites, such as 'Til My Blue Moon Turns to Gold Again' and 'Be Honest With Me,' winding up with "Mansion Over the Hilltop."

Roy Scott joined Smith, Poitras and Kowtun on stage to play his musical spoons along with 'Red Wing' and to put his dancing doll in action to accompany the lively beat of 'Golden Slippers.'

Clarence Poitras was back for two final numbers, 'Release Me' and 'Buckin' Horse Rider,' as time permitted a second round of music.

The Leitz and Donald families also sang a few more songs from their extensive repertoire, with Merv encouraged to park the pickle pail bass long enough to sing his favourite number, Wilf Carter's classic, 'The Strawberry Roan.'

Blanche Smith also took the stage to join her husband in the day's two final numbers, 'Weeping Willow Tree' and 'Flowers for the Master's Bouquet.'

The Forts des Prairies Jamboree is the final major event of the summer at Fort George and Buckingham House, but it isn't too late to fit in a visit to the historic site, which is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily up to and including Labour Day, before closing for the season.

Lindbergh vocalist Debbie Lawrence told the story of a well-used guitar found in an antique store in her first number, 'Imogene's Guitar.'

Clarence Poitras, Russ Kowtun and (not shown) Clarence Smith play an old time favourite dance tune, 'Red Wing,' as Roy Scott accompanies them on the spoons. Scott has performed at virtually every one of the Forts' annual jamborees, and also plays the mule bones and his dancing doll.

- Our feet are amazing. They are relatively small for the weight they have to carry but contain an intricate network of bones, tendons, ligaments and muscles to support that weight. Problems can occur with our feet and it's important not to ignore them. Pain, numbness, swelling and other symptoms should be checked to rule out major problems.

Distant memory

It has been two decades since Alberta Agriculture's review of our Ag Society found the organization in a very difficult financial position, but cleared of allegations of misspent funds. All that is now a distant memory, with the society having made great strides forward, making the fairgrounds arena an extremely well-used and successful facility and making numerous improvements to the A. G. Ross Arena as well.

Our community is proud of these facilities, and of the Ag Society members, who when the going was tough, just kept on going toward their goals.

Way Back When...

Torrential rain, no indication, heavy traffic

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF AUG. 27 IN...

1988

Torrential rainfall did little to slow down 130-plus golfers in the Fifth Annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with Doug Loupa winning the championship flight by a two-stroke margin over Ken McCaw. The rain also cancelled a car show to be held in conjunction with the Elk Point Fair, where Norma Berg won the Grand Aggregate award, with Dolores Zacharuk second and Edith Mitchell and Irene Magnusson tied for third.

1993

Alberta Agriculture released the results of a review of Elk Point Agricultural Society operations that started in May 1992 as a condition of a grant application, the report finding the society in a very difficult financial position but "with no indication whatsoever" that funds had been spent on any but agricultural society activities. Metro Papirny was champion of the 10th Annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament, edging out Tom Parenteau and Pat Nairn by a single stroke.

1998

Over two dozen entertainers packed five hours with music at Fort George and Buckingham House for the Forts des Prairies Jamboree, dedicated to the memory of cowboy poet John Drobot and country musician Peter Erasmus, both part of the event for many years. Businesses and services needed in Elk Point were the focus of a tentative plan by the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce to beef up the business district.

2003

There was heavy traffic in Heinsburg and vehicles packed the street from the station to the water tower as the community celebrated its 75th anniversary, with Grace Meger on horseback leading the Shadows of the Past parade and Sharkey's Bus Service bringing up the rear. Performers at the Forts des Prairies Jamboree ranged from four-year-old first timer Emily Thompson to seasoned performers Clarence and Blanche Smith, Roy Scott and Walter Anderson.

2008

A structure that economic development coordinator Bob Bezpalko felt was "the only viewing deck on the North Saskatchewan" was officially opened by town Minister of Municipal Affairs Ray Danyluk, Coun. Bernice Capjack and County Deputy Reeve. Glen Ockerman as their vision became reality. Work on turning a former oil company warehouse and shop into the Arts and Leisure Centre was coming along well, with a crew painting the ceiling and upper walls black with the help of a scissor lift and a spray gun.

Registration day!

Today, Tuesday, Aug. 27 is registration day for our back to school students who have a desire to register their name indicating their desire to attend school and learn what will be taught there. But wait a minute! Have you ever wondered what the word "registration" means? If we assume everyone knows what the word means then we can leave it at that. However, did you know it has more than one meaning? The definition ranges from a written record containing regular entries of items or details, to a set of organ pipes of like quality: stop. (This also includes the range of a human voice or a musical instrument.) So just in case you want to laugh about the English language with the double meaning of some words, let me explain the word registration in how its definition might be explained. Registration means a person will take the time to use their human voice by allowing air to come through their voice pipes in a range of varying levels to state they would like their name placed on a list.

After my attempt in explaining the definition of the word registration, you are probably now agreeing to go back to the assumption you knew what the word meant without any pondering thoughts. After all, school registration involves paying fees and the dictionary didn't have that definition as part of the word definition for the word registration. Besides Government assistance in various programs towards the cost of education in Alberta, there is no denying there is further cost to the parent for their child's education. Yes, these are called registration fees.

There is a cost to raising a child in America. On August 15th, Bryce Covert (Bryce Covert is the economic policy editor for THINKPROGRESS.), announced some interesting information. She said "the costs of raising a child from birth to age 17, including housing, food, clothing, health care, education, and other expenses, will come to $241,080 for a child born in 2012, up 2.6 percent from the year before, according to new data released by the Department of Agriculture. The annual cost for a child in a middle-income, two-parent family, ranges from $12,600 to $14,700. Of all these costs, housing was the largest, comprising about a third of all expenditures. After that, parents spent the most on child care and education, at 18 percent of the total, and food, 16 percent of the total."

Of course the above information is from the United States, but there is probably a similar or close to amount that could be stated about the cost factor to raising a child in Canada. The 18 percent factor is probably also close for child care and education costs. So there you go, it is registration day, lists are being made and fees are being gathered.

Is there something else about registration that hasn't been mentioned in the above points? Could that be, the words desire to be educated which leads to the importance of registering? The dictionary definition of the word desire is to long or hope for or to express a wish for. Then to go further, the definition of educate is to provide schooling for, to train by formal instruction and supervised practice; to develop mentally, morally, or aesthetically; to persuade or condition to feel, believe, or act in a desired way. There is a whole history of education and establishment of such that is it's own story. But meanwhile, today is registration day for our children and we are hoping they have a desire to want to learn what will be taught in our schools. That seems to be the bottom line for our children. The parents do the registering, which includes the listing of their children's names and paying the fees. That is registration day to parents. But what is it for our children? Yes, they have to want to be educated. By wanting, they are allowing their parents to register them. Wait a minute! Am I saying the child needs to be a part of registration day? Yes, that is basic! By wanting to be a part of the education process, they have made the first step in the learning process. The bottom line in the learning process is opportunity. The definition of opportunity is a favorable juncture of circumstances and a good chance for advancement or progress.

Now you know all about registration day. It is a good chance for advancement or progress requiring wind to go through our vocal pipes expressing a desire to have a name put on the list after a fee is paid. Happy registration day to all parents and students!!!

Elk Point players learned new skills on ice and on dry land at the Black Elks Hockey School in Bonnyville this summer.

Summer school fun!

By LISA WARAWA
Review Contributor

Earlier this month, half of Elk Point was here in Bonnyville for the Black Elks hockey camp, which consisted of power skating, ice skills, ball hockey, dry land training and outdoor games.

Participants included Avery, Rylee and Kayl Warawa, Hank, Charlie and Sam Rogal, Hayden and Liam Ludlage, Colton and Jaden Van Maarion, Daniel and Joey Cardinal, Josef Theriault, Angus McFarlane, Tyler

Jamieson and Odin Smith.

Most of the group was camped at Muriel Lake, she added. "Kids are enjoying the sun, sand, beach, playground etc... A few bumps and bruises and one major casualty... Colton broke his arm and is out of commission for a while with a full arm cast." The camp ended with a final game, graduation and report cards.

Local football players in Junior Football League

By LYNN PROSKIW
Review Contributor

The St. Paul Quarterback Football Club very proud that four of their alumni players are playing in the Junior Football League. Mark Proskiw (second year) and Nathan Gardiner (fourth year) are playing with the Edmonton Wildcats and Jason Jubinville (first year) and Zacharie Smith (first year) are playing with the Edmonton Huskies.

On Saturday, August 10 an Exhibition Jamboree concluded the fall training camp. It saw the Wildcats and Huskies meet first with at 10-6 victory for the Wildcats. Then the Huskies and Calgary Colts took the field with a 3-7 win for the Colts. And Finally the Wildcats took on the Calgary Colts and the final score was 13-7 for the Wildcats. The Exhibition consisted of two 15 minute quarters. The games were really close and the score could have gone any direction.

The Prairie Football League Season officially kicked off on Saturday with the Edmonton Huskies home to the Edmonton Wildcats, the Huskies winning 23-17.

Come out and watch our local youth. Next home game for the Huskies will be August 31 7 p.m. and on Sunday, Sept. 8, they take on the Wildcats at 1 p.m., both games at Clarke Stadium.

Portage suspends program

By SARAH WARING
Portage College

Portage College has suspended the Natural Resources Technician (NRT) Certificate program for the 2013-2014 Academic Year. Unfortunately, the program received less than 10 applications. The decision comes after additional expenditures in the spring and summer to market the program.

"We have been proactive in generating knowledge of the program over the past 16 months. Past graduates are employed and are doing well in industry. There are good jobs available for certificate graduates. The job market is particularly strong for those with the completed certificate who go on to complete the diploma," said Stuart Leitch, Director of Trades & Technology programs.

LRA Finals offer new perks and old comforts

RYAN MCCracken
 Journal Staff

The Lakeland Rodeo Association Finals are set to return to St. Paul for a 27th straight year, and as LRA President Dean Lawes points out, it will return with some new additions to enhance the fan experience.

"We've got some new aspects. We're going to have an instant replay board at the finals this year. We've got some new ideas for the grand entry that people need to come and watch too," says Lawes. "We've had probably 28 or 30 rodeos during the year, and we've got a good solid base of competitors coming to the finals."

The grand entry will kick off the LRA Finals on Thursday, and events are held each day at the Clancy Richard Arena leading into Sunday's final events.

Events include steer wrestling, barrel racing, bull riding, bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, tie down roping, team roping, and horse riding in various categories.

Lawes added that these cowboys and cowgirls compete all year long for a chance to reach the LRA Finals and compete for the title of champion.

"They compete all year long at these rodeos and the top 10 money earners get to come to the finals to compete for the championship and there's prize money for every go around. It pays $1,000 dollars every night to the winner in each event," says Lawes.

"The one that accumulates the most points over the five performances becomes the champion, and he receives a trophy saddle and buckle. There's also a high point trailer for anyone in any one timed event. Whoever wins the most points wins a brand new 20-foot aluminum gooseneck stock trailer. So there are some pretty big prizes there to win."

Ricky Ticky Wanchuk will also be returning to the rodeo grounds for some family entertainment, and Lawes says the rodeo clown has become a staple at the annual event.

"Ricky Ticky Wanchuk will be back. I think there's only been about two or three years that he hasn't done it, so it's probably 27 or so years that's been doing it," says Lawes. "Everybody knows Ricky Ticky, he brings a lot of excitement and everybody likes him. It's a good way to amuse the kids while they're at the rodeo."

Local competitors

Among the new additions are Spencer Young and Paul Wanchuk, two local competitors who will be appearing in their first LRA finals.

Wanchuk, a 14-year-old junior steer rider, has had a successful rodeo season, picking up three wins leading into the LRA finals, and he says there's sure to be some added pressure performing in front of a home crowd.

"It's pretty nerve-wracking really, I guess, and exciting at the same time," says Wanchuk, adding that he will be treating it "like any other rodeo," in the hopes of giving St. Paul a great show. "Hopefully they'll get to see five straight rides of 76 or higher."

Rodeo Mile gears up for 12th year

RYAN McCRACKEN
Journal Staff

The Northeast Alberta Track and Field Club will host the 12th annual Rodeo Mile Road Race and the fifth annual Quarter Mile Fun Run for Kids on Aug. 31 to kick off the rodeo parade.

"It has kind of become a standing event on rodeo week. Everybody knows about it, it's very easy to promote it and the people have become accustomed to it," said NEAT coach Albert Harmse. "It's an opportunity for people to come and see a real quality street mile."

The Rodeo Mile will start at 10:30 a.m. near the corner of 44 St. and 50 Ave. and travel west to the finish line at the UFO landing pad for an exact distance of one mile, while the Quarter Mile Fun Run will start in front of Ideal Carpets before finishing at the landing pad.

"Last year our starting time was 10:15, this year it's 10:30 a.m. so now it's when people are lining the streets to watch the parade, so more people will be able to see the race," said Harmse.

The Rodeo Mile will feature categories for different competitors, open male and female, masters male and female (40 and older), juniors (born in 1994/95), youths (born in 1996/97), midgets (born in 1998/99), bantams (born in 200/2001) and pee wees (born 2002 and after).

Every competitor will receive a free t-shirt, and the top three male and female athletes will receive cash prizes, $200 for first place, $150 for second and $100 for third, and gold medals will be awarded to first place finishers in each category. Bonus awards will also be given out to anyone who breaks the course records, set by Ian Manyfingers at 4:31 and Jennifer Kemp at 5:18.

— NEAT Coach Albert Harmse

her title of 2012 overall female winner. Kitt finished last year's Rodeo Mile with time of 5:31, and Harmse says that she will have her eye on setting a new record, as she had a very strong season on the track, picking up numerous gold events and finishing sixth at the National Youth Championships.

"She has improved a great deal. Her 1,500m time for instance, which is a comparable distance (to the mile), improved by around about 12 or 13 seconds, and she didn't even have an optimal race because it was one of her prep races for other distances," said Harmse. "In the 3,000m she has improved about 40 seconds from last year to this year, so if you look at all that she's prone for a good time."

The Quarter Mile Fun Run is open to children under the age of nine. Ribbons will be awarded to each competitor, and medals will be presented to the first boy and girl to cross the finish line in the under-seven and under-nine age groups. The first 40 entries will also receive a free t-shirt. Athletes can register for the events at the Associated Medical Clinic in the St. Paul Health and Wellness Centre and the St. Therese Health Centre at an entry fee of $25 for the Rodeo Mile and $10 for the Quarter Mile Fun Run.

Late entries for the Rodeo Mile can be made at Super 8 Hotel on Aug. 30 between 9:15 and 10 a.m., and registration for the Quarter Mile Fun Run will be open until 10 a.m. at the finish line in front of the UFO landing pad.

Rodeo week offers good eating for pocket change

SAM MACDONALD
Journal Staff

Rodeo week boasts a good deal of culinary attractions going on in St. Paul during the upcoming celebrations.

Starting off the week is the smokie and corn barbecue on Aug. 27 at the Co-op Mall, put on by St. Paul Football. The next day, a beef on a bun lunch will be offered by Servus Credit Union and on Thursday, ATCO Electric will host a toonie pancake breakfast in the morning.

Thursday will also feature the Co-op's revived Chili Cook-off.

There is a lot of enthusiasm about the return of the chili cook-off with 13 teams signed up for the competition. It has the highest number of teams registered that Janelle Faryna, marketing supervisor for the Co-op, has seen since she began coordinating the event.

Chili, a bun, and bottle of pop or water will be available for $3.

Teams will show up at 11 a.m. and start cooking, and then the chili will be served at 11:30 to the public and three judges.

"Last year, we changed it to a pulled pork challenge. It was nice to do something fresh and new for the sake of a change, and we wanted to switch it up. Not having chili for a year really made people appreciate it and anticipate the cook-off this year," says Faryna.

This year, anticipating a bigger turnout, the Co-op has moved the cook-off outside to the mall parking lot.

"It will be a busy week, but we're hoping the parking lot can accommodate that many people. People are pretty excited this year, already. Positivity for the Chili Cook-off is big this year. It's back and better than ever," says Faryna.

Ideal Carpets will be holding a toonie pancake breakfast on Aug. 30 with the intent of donating the proceeds to Haying in the 30's. The breakfast will feature pancakes, juice, sausages, and coffee, and will run from 7 to 9 a.m.

"Last year we ended up having it run a bit longer because there were still people showing up," says John Reid, manager of Ideal Carpets, and the same thing could happen this year.

"It's a good time to stay in St. Paul that week. There are all kinds of meals all over the place, and none of it is all that expensive. I encourage people to take advantage not only of the breakfast we're putting on, but of all the events going on all week."

On Friday, Magic Fingers Design Team is hosting an event called Hairpolooza from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Proceeds from Hairpolooza will go to the St. Paul and Community Family Benefit. The event will include a barbecue that starts at 11 a.m.

Also that day, free hotdogs and pop will be served at Sobeys from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the Community Gardens Society's potato roast from 11:30 a.m. to COOKOFF - A chili cookoff competitor is hard at work as she prepares for the annual judging of chili recipes in St. Paul on Thursday.

1 p.m. A toonie pulled pork on a bun put on by the County of St. Paul at the Rec. Centre will lead into the rodeo's first performance.

On Aug. 31 a pancake toonie breakfast will be held at the Co-op Mall, the St. Paul and Community Family Benefit will host a barbecue at the Value Drug Mart Park on main street, a Ukrainian lunch will take place at the Rec. Centre, and the toonie pulled pork supper, sponsored by the Town of St. Paul, will also be offered.

"The community really comes together during rodeo week, and it's a blessing to everyone involved, the cowboys and agricultural communities, business owners, and everyone who lives here," says Reid.

Fifteen-year-old Spencer Young will also be taking on her first LRA finals, and says she is excited to follow in the footsteps of two past generations of her family.

"It's my first time to make the LRA finals so it's quite exciting for me. My grandpa, Larry Lorensen, was the 1980 calf roping champion and sat on the LRA board for many years. My mom, Wendy Young, was the 1984 and 1985 junior barrel racing champion and has qualified a few times in the ladies barrel racing. My dad, Charlie Young, was the 2009 cowboy of the year and served many years on the LRA board as well," says Young, adding that her parents and brother have been big factors in her success.

"I'm very excited to be competing in front of my friends and family and to be the third generation of my family to qualify for the LRA finals."

Young will be riding a 15-year-old mare named Bows, and she says while it took a while for the two to get acquainted, they're now ready to take on the finals in St. Paul.

"Our season started off a little slow as we were trying to get to know each other, and about half way through the summer things started to fall together. I placed at a few rodeos and was lucky enough to win a couple," she says. "Bows likes small indoor arenas, so I'm going to make consistent runs and see what happens. Regardless of the outcome, I'm just happy to be able to have this opportunity."

Ruby Braconnier, a ladies barrel racer from Elk Point, will be making her fourth appearance at the LRA finals this year, and says it is a great experience to perform in front of friends and family.

"I like it, my family is there and friends, it's a good time. Everybody is there to help support you, it's great," says Braconnier.

Braconnier recently had to retire her horse Sonnie, and says she has had to rely on the help of some friends to get through the season.

"In July at the Stony Lake Rodeo I had to retire him, I didn't want to but he had a knee injury. So I haven't ran him since Stony Lake and I've borrowed some girlfriends' horses to keep me going," she said. "I'd really like to thank Megan Proski and Caitlin Stark for letting me use their horses to finish off my season and at the finals."

Braconnier says that while the transition to her new horses has posed some challenges, she is feeling good about her chances heading into the finals this weekend.

"It is hard, it takes a couple of runs before you get into a momentum with them. I didn't pull any cheques with the one mare, but then the second mare that I've gone after my fourth rodeo, I pulled a cheque at Two Hills, I got second honours," she says. "I feel really confident on Caitlin's mare, it's a really nice mare. I've just got to ride her and ride tough and let her do her job and it should all work out."

Saturday offers fun for kids, parade

JANICE HUSER
Journal Staff

Along with the usual cowboys and candy, this year's rodeo parade will be filled with floats decorated with clovers, the colour green, and other well-known 4-H details, in recognition of this year's chosen theme – the 4-H Canada centennial.

"We're celebrating the 100 year anniversary of 4-H Canada," says Matisson Hannotte, executive director of the St. Paul & District Chamber of Commerce. The annual rodeo parade will take place on Aug. 31, with floats being judged at 9:30 a.m. and the parade starting at about 10:30 a.m. near the soccer fields.

The parade will make its way through town, following the same route it has in the past. From the soccer fields, the parade will go south past the Co-op Mall and turn west onto main street. At 45 Street it will turn south and make its way past the St. Paul Elementary School, Sunnyside Manor, and south again to make its way past Extencicare, turning north at the hospital and back up to main street again.

The parade will continue west on main street, then south at the UFO landing pad, coming to an end at the Rec. Centre.

As of last week, there were plans in place to have a military fly-by at 10:30 a.m., around the time the parade is expected to start, says Rhea Labrie, and organizer and St. Paul Ag Society volunteer.

People should watch for the fly-by, because it could happen rather quickly and it could also be quite loud, says Labrie.

Assembly of the parade floats will begin at 7:30 a.m., and judging will take place at 9:30 a.m. Awards will be handed out in eight categories, including: commercial, clubs, theme, mounted horse entry, horse drawn entry, individual (includes modified cars), antique vehicles, and kids (participation prize).

All parade entries must pre-register by Aug. 29, according to the parade manual and entry form, which is available at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Following the parade on Saturday, a number of events directed at children will be taking place, such as the Agland Tractor Pull at the curling rink at noon and other family activities in the same area.

The third rodeo performance of the weekend will also take place, and is known each year as kids' day.

Although "there's no kids on parade this year," says Labrie, referring to what was also known as the best-dressed event, the children in attendance at the rodeo on Saturday will still be invited onto the arena floor.

Rodeo finals benefit the community

SAM MACDONALD
Journal Staff

Rodeo week, and the Lakeland Rodeo Association Finals themselves mean a lot to the community of St. Paul, its business people, citizens, and administration, and is often seen as an important event each year.

One of the most common praises that people have of the rodeo is that it brings many people into the community annually.

"The rodeo means big things – it's a tremendous event for the town and county," says County of St. Paul Reeve Steve Upham. "We have competitors and visitors coming in from all over northeastern Alberta, since that's the area covered by the Lakeland Rodeo Association."

Upham says the rodeo "gives the town and county an opportunity to showcase the community and region to a wider audience."

He adds, "Competitors come in, they shop, stay overnight, and bring in visitors to watch from all over, staying at campsites, hotels, enjoying the region. The rodeo has a very wide-ranging impact for the community."

Andre Chamberland, President of the St. Paul Agricultural Society, has a lot of enthusiasm for rodeo week, and also believes the event benefits the town in many ways.

"It's probably the biggest event that goes in on St. Paul throughout the whole year. It started off as an average little rodeo in 1972, and became the LRA finals. For 26 year, the finals have been in St. Paul," explains Chamberland.

"It brings in a ton of people, and benefits a lot of different businesses. It's definitely a way to support the community, and it's huge with everything going on in town, from different pancake breakfasts, with the chili cook-off and talent shows, the Chamber of Commerce's supper on Monday night, and everything that happens. It brings people to St. Paul, and that's huge."

Chamberland believes the Saturday morning parade is another appealing, and beneficial aspect of rodeo week.

"There are close to 100 entries this year, and I don't know how many people exactly come to watch it, but the parade alone is a reason to visit the town."

This year at 10:30 a.m. the parade will start to the sound of TF18 fighter jets from Cold Lake doing a fly-by over Main Street. "I would just like everyone to come out to any of the different attractions," says Chamberland. "There are five rodeo performances going on, and they're good ones. There's lots of talent."

Chamberland acknowledges and extends a thanks to those who help out with the activities during rodeo week saying, "We have a great core group of Ag. Society members who make this happen. People in the community make this happen."

Town of St. Paul CAO Ron Boisvert agrees that the LRA finals are good for the area.

"It's good entertainment for everyone here and surrounding area. . . It attracts a lot of people to stop in the area. This means there's spinoff business from people being here . . . Basically it's part of economic development, an attraction to the town, which brings in a lot of funds," adding, "It's exciting and good for everyone."

Contractors bring their best to Showdown

VICKI BROOKER
Journal Staff

Without them, there would be no rodeo. They're the stock contractors, and although much of their work is done behind the chutes, they play an integral role in the success of every performance of the season, especially at the Showdown finals.

Stock contractors spend their summers on the road, transporting carefully selected loads of bulls, saddle broncs and bareback broncs to rodeos across the province and beyond. At each show, the contractors and their helpers sort the stock into pens for each performance, according to that day's program, then load them into the bucking chutes in the required order as the performance progresses. As each animal completes its performance, it is guided into a pen leading to a stripping chute where saddles, halters, bareback riggings and flank straps are removed before it returns to its pen to be fed and watered, and later trucked back to the ranch when the weekend is over.

The performance put on by each bull or bronc every time a chute gate cracks open helps to determine if that animal will be chosen for the Showdown finals, and also determines the winners of the Bareback Bronc, Saddle Bronc and Bull of the Year. Stock that bucks well and scores high during the season can earn its owner an invitation to provide the stock for Showdown.

Stock for Showdown 2013 will be provided by Trach Rodeo Ltd. of Two Hills, Red Road Rodeo/IncrediBull of St. Paul, Thompson Rodeo of New Sarepta, Miller Rodeo Co. of Athabasca and Doubletree Rodeo of Buck Lake. All of them will be bringing the best of their best to challenge the top Lakeland Rodeo Association competitors and keep you on the edge of your seat from the time the first chute gate cracks open Thursday evening until the last champion is declared on Sunday afternoon.

Enjoy the rodeo, everyone!

The three 'R's of rodeo

What to watch for at Showdown 2013

VICKI BROOKER
Journal Staff

Ridin', ropin' and rasslin' are sometimes considered the three 'R's of rodeo, but there's a whole lot more to the sport than just climbing aboard a horse or bull, or roping or wrestling an uncooperative farm animal. For those not too familiar with what goes on in the rodeo arena, here are the basics of each event, so you'll know what to watch for at Showdown 2013.

Bareback Bronc Riding, Saddle Bronc Riding and

Bull Riding are considered "rough stock" events, where the aim of the game is to stay on board for eight seconds after the chute gate opens. Both the rider and the animal are marked on the ride, the rider on his style and the animal on its bucking ability, with each of two judges assessing points out of 25 for the rider and out of 25 for the animal. These four scores are added up to obtain the score for the ride. In all three rough stock events, the rider's free hand must not touch the animal, the rigging, saddle, rein or bull rope until the eight seconds is complete.

In Bareback riding, the rider holds tight to a suit-case-type handle attached to a padded leather oval that is fastened around the horse with a saddle-type cinch. He must have his spurs at the point of the horse's shoulders when he comes out of the chute, which is called "marking (the animal) out," and failure to do so, is called "missing (the animal) out" and disqualifies the rider from receiving a score. The score the rider receives depends on both staying aboard and spurring in sync with the horse's action, jerking his knees so his spurs come up the shoulders when the horse leaves the ground. His feet fly out away from the horse, and as the horse's front feet come back to the ground, the cowboy's spurs go back to the front of the shoulders to brace him for the impact.

Saddle Bronc is the classic rodeo event and the most graceful of the rough stock events. The cowboy rides on an "association saddle" which does not have a horn, and holds tight onto a fat, braided rope rein fastened to the horse's halter. He, too, must have his feet at the point of the shoulders as the duo comes out of the chute, but the spurring action in this ride is different, because his feet are in the stirrups and his toes are turned out as he spurs with long, sweeping stokes that go all the way back to the back corners of the saddle.

Bull Riding is all about balance and control, with the rider wrapping a flat, braided rope around the bull's girth and slipping one end through a loop on the other end, and pulling the rope snug, then wrapping the free end around his hand and tucking the end under the rope encircling the bull. A bell is attached to the rope and hangs under the bull's belly. Spurring is not required in Bull Riding, but it does add to the score, and the specially designed spurs, called 'bull hooks,' also help the rider to stay on board the twisting, bucking ton of beef. The bull rider is not required to mark the animal out.

Rodeo

Junior Bull Riding and Novice Horse Riding, where bareback and saddle bronc riders compete together, follow the same rules, however, in Junior Steer Riding, the rider may ride with one or two hands, but must continue to use one or two hands for the entire eight seconds.

In the four other events, speed is what competitors need to take the lead.

In both Ladies' and Junior Barrel Racing, competitors ride through a timer on their way into the arena, then follow a cloverleaf pattern around three barrels set in a triangle, with two at the end closest to the timer and the third at the far end of the arena. The rider can choose which of the closer barrels to circle first, and must then make a figure eight around the other close barrel before heading up to loop around the third barrel and ride back through the timer to determine the total time for the ride. If the horse or rider tips over one or more of the barrels, a five-second penalty per tipped barrel is added to the score.

The remaining three events start in the open-fronted boxes flanking a chute at the far end of the arena.

In Tie Down Roping (sometimes known as calf roping), the competitor backs his horse into one of the boxes, and after a calf is loaded into the chute, a string attached to the chute gate is stretched across the box containing the horse and rider. When the roper signals his readiness with a nod of his head, the chute gate is released and the calf darts out with the horse and roper in hot pursuit. The roper tosses the loop of his lariat over the calf's head, and secures the free end of the lariat to his saddle horn, pulls the horse to a stop and leaps off, runs to the calf, lifts it off the ground and lays it on its side, and slips the loop of a short, thin rope called a "piggin' string" around one of the calf's legs, gathers up two other legs and quickly ties the three together with two wraps of the piggin' string and a half-hitch knot, sometimes known as a "hooy." Time is counted from the time the calf leaves the chute until the knot is complete and the roper throws his hands in the air.

Team Roping involves two competitors, each backing their horse into one of the boxes flanking the chute loaded with their quarry, this time a steer with horns. The string from the chute gate is stretched across in front of the competitor designated as the 'header,' and when the header nods, the steer is released and both riders head out of the boxes, the header tossing the loop over the steer's horns and leading it forward, while his teammate, known as the 'heeler,' tries to toss his loop around the steer's hind legs. Both ropers much make a catch to have an eligible time, and if the heeler only catches one hind leg, a five second penalty is assessed.

In both types of roping, as well as in Steer Wrestling, a competitor whose horse leaves the box before the calf or steer leaves the chute is said to have "broken the barrier" and has a penalty added to the time for the run.

Steer Wrestling also involves teamwork, with the second person called a 'hazer.' Both the steer wrestler and the hazer back into the boxes and when the steer is released from the chute, the hazer's job is to keep the steer running straight ahead, while the steer wrestler rides as close as possible to the other side of the steer, drops off his horse onto the steer's back, grabs its horns, digs in his boot heels to bring the animal to a stop, and twists the steer's head, making it drop flat its side on the arena floor, determining the time for the run at that point.

Pond hockey 'just for fun'

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

A new winter sport is gaining popularity in Elk Point.

"We started last year with pond hockey as a trial run and we ended up with 17 registered players from the ages of eight to 15," says Maria Cueva, one of the organizers of last year's successful experiment

"We had a great time playing pond hockey and even had the opportunity to play with other pond hockey teams in our area."

This year, she says, the group's goal is to increase the numbers and have two teams, one for older and one for younger children.

So what is pond hockey? Hockey Alberta calls it an "innovative approach" to hockey, developed about 10 years ago, with less structure, flexible age divisions, family involvement and less structured playing rules, which include no body checking and no body contact, a sport that is "just for fun."

Hockey Alberta emphasizes that it is "not intended to replace competitive or recreational hockey offered by minor hockey associations," but to offer an alternative opportunity, in some cases utilizing outdoor ice.

Pond hockey's mission statement is, "To serve all who want to provide the opportunity for youth to play pond hockey in a safe, fair and fun environment by offering quality services and support."

That support, according to the information manual, includes the availability of the Hockey Alberta insurance program. Also, pond hockey registrations have no effect on provincial categorization, boundaries are a non-issue and age categories are based on local needs.

Appropriate equipment and adequate supervision is required, but there is no centre line or blue line, and no slap shots. Hockey Alberta points out that this is an ideal venue for youngsters to learn the basic skills of the game.

The program is also affordable – a nominal $34.50 Hockey Alberta registration and insurance fee, plus any additional charge determined by the local organizers.

For more information, stop by the Pond Hockey booth at Elk Point Information Night on Tuesday, Sept. 2 at the Elk Point Arts and Leisure Centre, Elk Point "Pond Hockey" ... just for fun!

Horticulture, crafts fill A. G. Ross Arena with local talent showcase

The Violet Award

Myrna Fox presented Millie Orr with the Violet Award for the most entries in the Quilting and Knitting, Crochet and Weaving sections. The award is in memory of Fox's mother, Violet McFadyen, who was a strong advocate of fair participation, and whose sewing machine was a featured display in the Quilt Show area.

Talent comes in many kinds, with the Elk Point Agricultural Society's Horticulture and Craft Show displaying some of the best work of area gardeners, artists and craftspeople at the A. G. Ross Arena on Aug. 11. Fresh flowers, above, have a background of handcrafted quilts, vegetables ranged from unique potatoes to huge zucchini, left, and fair visitors had the opportunity to enjoy the creations of three local artists, below.

School zones

"Watch out for them, and always follow the rules of the road."

Motorists must be mindful to always yield to pedestrians and stop for buses when the red lights are flashing.

"I take my hat off to the school bus drivers that commit themselves to safely getting our children to and from school," says Sallstrom, adding, "They do not have an easy job."

He explains that there are far too many incidents where bus drivers have to deal with motorists who don't stop for the buses as they should.

"The flashing lights mean stop. Failing to do so puts children at risk and could earn you a fine of $402, and loss of six demerits," says Sallstrom.

School zones will also be in effect during school days, and it is a driver's responsibility to know when school hours are and when the zones are in effect. All zones in St. Paul are in effect during school days between the hours of 8 a.m. and 9:30, 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., and 3 p.m. and 4:30.

The speed limit in urban or rural school zones is 30km/h.

Along with keeping motorists alert to school buses and school zones, Sallstrom offers some tips to make sure children and parents are also following safe procedures when getting to and from school.

Teaching children to "point, pause and proceed," and being alert at intersections is encouraged, along with following any bus-safety rules. Children that ride bikes must always wear a helmet, according to information from Sallstrom.

The decision to suspend the certificate program this year will also directly impact the delivery of the Natural Resources Technician (NRT) Diploma in 2014-2015.

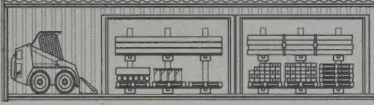

Leitch indicates there is no direct impact to the staff in the programs for 2013-2014 year.

"Workloads for the program staff have been redeveloped which will support our Continuing Education Forestry programming," he said. The enrolled students have been contacted and alternative educational programs are being discussed.

"Fledgling programs like NRT need to be given sufficient time to have impact in the marketplace. As this year's diploma graduates move into the workforce more employers will see how effective these employees are. We will have to reassess our promotion and marketing strategies for the NRT Certificate in 2014," said Mardere Birkill, Vice President Academic.

School bus statistics

School buses in Alberta travel an estimated 450,000 km/day, which is more than 10 times around the earth.

About 40 per cent of the other drivers involved in collisions with school buses committed a driver error. The most common driver error committed by other drivers was following too closely.

The maximum speed limit for school buses is different than other vehicles on the highway. School buses, with or without passengers, must not exceed 90 km/h or the posted speed limit, whichever is lower, according to information from Sallstrom.
